

The Business of Furniture | July 4, 2018

BOF

ERGOCHIEF Finds Active Work
Helps Mind as Well as Body

BDI Takes Shelving to New Heights with Kite Collection

🕒 Furniture designer and innovator BDI is offering a new shelving collection that takes office storage and display to new heights. Kite shelving offers a stylish and customizable option for displaying a complete library or a lifetime full of treasures.

With its soaring design, it can be used as a single unit or grouped in multiples, creating a complete wall system for any office or living room. The five-tier design is available with either a black or satin white frame and available in four wood finishes, including charcoal stained walnut, charcoal stained ash, toasted walnut or satin white. For those who need additional space, a sixth shelf can easily be included.

“Kite shelving was thoughtfully designed to offer choice for various spaces,” said Bill Becker, CEO and Design Director of BDI. “With different frame and shelf finish options, and the ability to add multiple units or even another level, Kite can be customized with a look and setup that best matches a consumer’s space, shelving needs and personal style.”

Beyond its design, Kite shelving is remarkably sturdy. The inset steel frame safely secures each shelf while five-point floor glides compensate for uneven surfaces. Two-point wall levelers provide additional stability, while wall anchors help keep Kite safely secured to the wall.